WELCOME

Offutt has played a major role in American military history for more than a century now. This great heritage began with the construction of Fort Crook between 1894 and 1896, just 10 miles south of Omaha and two miles west of the Missouri River.

The fort's namesake was Maj. Gen. George Crook, who was a renowned fighter in the American-Indian Wars and a Civil War hero.

Many of the original structures built on the post before 1900, including the guardhouse and various enlisted and officers' quarters, are still in use today.

In June 1946, the Army Air Corps re-designated Fort Crook as Offutt Field and just 18 months later it was transferred to the new Department of the Air Force, becoming Offutt Air Force Base.

In 1948, Offutt gained national prominence when it became the host base for the Strategic Air Command. It was chosen as headquarters to the U.S. Air Force's crucial long-range atomic striking force primarily because the base was centrally located on the North American continent, placing it well beyond the range of existing potentially hostile bombers or missiles.

Through the years many units and missions have called Offutt their home. In 1966, the 55th Strategic Reconnaissance Wing moved to base and would later become the 55th Wing to match its growing mission. It became the installation's host unit in 1986.

With the disestablishment of SAC in 1992, Offutt transitioned to Air Combat Command and became the host to the new U.S. Strategic Command.

Today, the former Army outpost, once hard pressed to support a few hundred soldiers, now accommodates a combined military and civilian workforce of some 12,000 while supporting more than 22,000 family members.

55TH WING

As Offutt Air Force Base's host unit, the 55th Wing is Air Combat Command's largest wing and the second largest wing in the U.S. Air Force. Consisting of more than 30 aircraft, six groups, 31 squadrons and more than 7,000 personnel, the Fightin' Fifty-Fifth's mission is to provide dominant Information Warfare forces through Electromagnetic Spectrum Operations, Information Operations, Intelligence, Surveillance, Reconnaissance, and Nuclear Command, Control and Communications to the Joint Forces and national leadership, any time, any place.

U.S. STRATEGIC COMMAND

U.S. Strategic Command is one of the eleven unified combatant commands in the Department of Defense. Its overall mission is to deter strategic attack and employ forces, as directed, to guarantee the security of our nation and our allies. The command's assigned responsibilities include strategic deterrence; nuclear operations; space operations; joint electronic spectrum operations; global strike; missile defense; and analysis and targeting. STRATCOM's forces and capabilities underpin and enable all other Joint Force operations.

557TH WEATHER WING

The mission of the 557th Weather Wing is to maximize America's power through the exploitation of timely, accurate and relevant weather information; anytime, everywhere. The 557th is a specialized mission wing optimizing our longstanding joint, combatant command, coalition, allied, and interagency partnerships to achieve our nation's objectives. Its manning consists of more than 1,400 active duty, reserve, civilian and contract personnel and executes a $32 million annual budget including more than $1 million in operations and maintenance.
